

Bad Weather Is Prediction For Future

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brutal weather continued to plague the country today as a new band of snow blanketed many areas, freezing rain and drizzle brought traffic to a crawl in other portions and the death toll edged upward.

And a note for optimists—the Weather Bureau says not to expect any quick or lasting relief from winter's several weapons, because there's more to come. Temperatures moderated in portions of the Midwest and Kentucky eastward along the Atlantic Coast from South Carolina north to Maryland, but the relief in some cases was tempered by precipitation.

At least 141 deaths have been reported since the severe cold moved into the nation's central section Tuesday and began expanding into the East and South.

Temperatures were warmer in Wisconsin, Ohio, northern Illinois and Indiana, but heavy snow warnings were issued for the area. Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan were the victims of tenacious cold with subzero readings in many areas. Hazardous driving warnings were in effect for eastern and southern Missouri and southern Illinois with freezing drizzle turning to snow.

The record-shattering low temperatures in the South and Southeast continued to moderate, but Kentucky, Arkansas, Alabama and Georgia all reported hazardous driving conditions because of freezing drizzle and snow.

Temperatures over the southern two-thirds of Florida and extreme southern Texas were reported in the 60s or higher.

The Northeast began to emerge from winter's icebox. New England was warmer after some low readings last night. Inland southern New England reported 0 to 5 above readings and temperatures in the teens along the coast.

Parts of New York began a slow thaw after low readings ranging from 3 in Albany to 12 in Buffalo and Elmira. Watertown's 52 inches of snow was being increased by a light snowfall.

Below zero readings continued their hold in the Plains states and northern Midwest. One of the coldest readings was -24 in Wausau, Wis.

The coldest sustained temperatures were in the central Dakotas. It was -18 in Aberdeen, S.D., and -16 in Bismarck, N.D. Light snow and subzero readings covered most of Nebraska.

The Pacific Coast was covered by fair skies, but the Northwest was stung by the freezing line which stretched westward across the northern Gulf states through Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Central Nevada and northward over northeastern California and western Oregon and Washington.

Ladybird Has the Monopoly

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—City councilmen decided Thursday that cable television is needed in Austin, served only by a station in which Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's wife is principal stockholder.

Witnesses had complained in public hearings Austin's 190,000 residents were a captive audience.

Capital Cable Television Co., one of four firms which want to bring in telecasts from nearby cities, promptly applied for a franchise.

The council has been told that Mrs. Johnson's station, KTBC-TV, holds an option to buy 50 per cent of Capital Cable's stock.

Big Still Found Near Hot Springs

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Federal agents said Thursday they raided a 450-gallon still near Hot Springs Tuesday that was capable of making 100 gallons of illegal whiskey daily. Agents of the federal Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit and the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control said Albert F. Ellis was charged with possessing and operating the still. He was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Sigun Rasmussen and released on $1,000 bond, they said. Agents said stills usually run from 50 to 150 gallon capacity.

Mill Closes, Town Worries About Future

YALE, Mich. (AP)—The 1,621 men, women and children in this eastern Michigan community depended to a large extent on 300 jobs and a $1 million yearly payroll of the town's only industry.

The jobs and the payroll vanished this week.

The town is gripped by fear and worry about the future.

What to do about this—rather than the subzero temperatures that are the lowest in years—is the question.

For the older folk, Lavern Carl, 59, put it thus: At our age, there isn't much you can do.

Mrs. Carl and her husband, 62, were employed 35 years at the Yale Woolen Mills. The mills closed Wednesday.

We in management did a lot of soul searching before deciding we simply had to close," said Robert E. Andrea, secretary-treasurer of the firm founded in 1881.

The bottom has been dropping out of the wool and textile industry for years," Andrea said. We kept in business against increasing odds merely to provide employment. So many depended on us we couldn't stop as long as there was any hope. Losses finally wiped that out."

Andrea said the decision to close was based on changing patterns of world commerce, the trend of laws governing imports and inroads made in the wool business by synthetic fibers.

But Andrea added: We're not blaming labor, industry or the laws as such. We simply can't meet the competition in wools from countries where costs are cheaper. We have been flooded with imports."

Donald Winkler, 43, father of eight and secretary-treasurer of Local 980 of the Textile Workers Union of America, was one of the 300 who lost their jobs.

Winkler said his union members averaged $1.70 an hour in wages and weekly pay checks approximated $67.

The State Health Department has ordered the town to build a new sewage plant at an estimated cost of $400,000. There's a $1 million bond issue for a needed new school to be voted on in April.

The textile plant paid a quarter of the town taxes.

Living Costs Have Declined

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs, as measured by the government, declined by two-tenths of one per cent in December because of lower food prices. It was the largest decline for any month in four years.

Reporting this today, government officials cautioned however that the drop will be wiped out when price data for January becomes available on account of higher food prices this month due to early winter crop freezes.

The Labor Department reported that its consumer price index declined in December to 105.8 per cent of the 1957-59 base period.

This is three-tenths of one per cent below the record high of last September and 1.2 per cent above the December 1961 level. On the former living cost measurement base of 1947-49 the December index was 123.3.

Dollarway Opens, No Integration

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—The second day of classes since a white youth was injured Tuesday and a Negro man arrested were to resume at Dollarway School today, apparently again without the two Negro students attending.

George Howard, father of Sarah Howard, 14, one of the students, said Wednesday his daughter and Samuel Wayne Cato, 8, would not attend the school again until the government provided adequate protection for them.

They did not attend the school Thursday after Howard had received no promise of protection from U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy or Gov. Orval E. Faubus, both of whom he telegraphed for aid Tuesday. Howard has said he would have no further comment on the matter.

The school was closed because of cold weather the day after the incident.

Faubus has not commented on the incident, in which Johnny Irvin, 18, received a knife wound and William Howard, 33, was charged with assault with intent to kill. A Justice Department spokesman said the department is not planning an investigation of the situation.

The incident happened when Howard arrived at school to pick up the students. The Howard girl had entered the school for the first time Monday and there were no reported difficulties that day. The Cato boy has attended the second grade all year.

The Tuesday flare-up was the first reported violence at the school since it was integrated in 1960.

Hope Star today released for national publication the photographs it made of the old steam-fired Goodlet Brothers cotton gin at Goodlet and printed in a page feature several years ago.

The picture release was given to D. W. Chandler, Extension Cotton Ginning and Marketing Specialist, 1201 MacAlmont, Little Rock, who is preparing a feature article on the old mill for the national magazine Cotton Gin & Oil Mill Press.

One of the things that fascinated A. H. Washburn, Star editor who took the pictures, and Mr. Chandler, was the detail shown in the photograph of the old wood-fired steam engine. Three of the pictures, including the one of the old engine, were reprinted by Memphis Commercial Appeal after publication in Hope.

Co-op Group Ends Conference

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Cooperative Conference ended its meeting here Thursday by hearing three persons who work with agriculturalists throughout the state.

Speaking to the group were A. M. Freeman III, manager of the Southern Farmers Association; Harry Oswald, general manager of Arkansas State Electrical Cooperatives and Waldo Prasier, executive vice president of Farm Bureau Federation sponsors of the conference.

Cecil Wyatt, 50, Former Resident, Dies Friday

Cecil E. Wyatt, 50, died Friday afternoon while at work in Murfreesboro. He is a former resident of Hope. Survivors include his wife, Princess Waddle Wyatt, his mother, Mrs. Arminia Wyatt of Jacksonville, Ark., three sisters, Mrs. Elmer Fiddler of Conway, Mrs. Hollis Thearl of Jacksonville and Mrs. Sewary Silverthorn of White Oak, Texas, two brothers, Clifford Wyatt of Denver and William of California.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced later by Herndon-Cornelius Funeral Home.

Meet Delayed by Weather

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Cold weather forced postponement of a regular meeting of the state Board of Health Thursday for the first time in 50 years. Six of the 10 board members reported from various parts of the state that roads were too icy for travel.

Dr. J. T. Herron, state health officer, said he said minutes showed there had been no postponed meetings since the agency was created in 1913. The meeting was rescheduled for 10 a.m. next Thursday.

Longshoremen End Strike Of 34 Days

NEW YORK (AP)—The pulse beat of the waterfront from Maine to Texas begins throbbing again today after a deadly silence of 34 days.

Some 60,000 longshoremen ended the longest and costliest dock strike in Atlantic maritime history after their leaders received a report that President Kennedy was fed up with local quibbling that threatened to prolong the walkout.

But there was still one area along the coastline—at Norfolk, Va., where longshoremen refused to go along with their union's order to return to work.

A dispute brewed there between warehousemen members of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association and terminal operators.

David Alston, an ILA international vice president, was reported as saying his Norfolk dockworkers would remain on strike to back up the warehousemen in the local disagreement.

But another holdout area fell in line when Texas longshoremen agreed Friday night to put aside a local contract issue over size of work gangs and return to the docks Sunday.

They acceded several hours after Kennedy's Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds told a Galveston meeting of Texas longshoremen and shippers, The President has tried to keep his hands off this thing as long as he could. Now he's pretty fed up."

Reynolds then stalked out of the meeting.

A few hours later, ILA President William V. Bradley, who was in Texas trying to straighten out the situation there, gave the order for a complete return to work on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Bradley said local issues would be negotiated later.

The union had held at the start of the strike, Dec. 23, that the walkout would continue until all local issues were settled.

ILA negotiators last Sunday accepted a master contract covering dockworkers from Maine to Virginia. This usually sets the contract pattern for South Atlantic and Gulf Coast longshoremen. However, each port also negotiates local contracts.

The master contract provisions were dictated by a three-man board set up by Kennedy Jan. 16 to mediate the dispute and recommend a settlement. Two days after the ILA accepted the terms, the New York shipping association, the employer group followed suit.

With the return to work, the longshoremen have a month-long backup of cargo to handle.

Wreckage of B52 Is Found

GREENVILLE, Maine (AP)—Wreckage of a B52 stratofortress and two survivors from its nine-man crew were found today on Elephant Mountain, about 10 miles east of here.

The $8 million jet bomber, out of Westover Air Force Base, Mass., had crashed head-on into a precipitous face of the 2,600-foot mountain.

Bush pilot Budd Holt, who flew over at 500 feet, said the big, eight-jet plane was completely disintegrated. The only things recognizable, he said, were a couple of tires.

The two survivors, not immediately identified, were flown in helicopters to Dow Air Force Base in Bangor.

Oldest Existing Town in Arkansas, Fulton, Has Had a Very Colorful History

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Once a month this year we plan to take a close look at communities in our area. It is only natural that the first one featured should be Fulton, the oldest existing town in Arkansas.

This once-thriving river port town has been described as being "old even before there was an Arkansas." It was an important river crossing for Indians, French and Spanish explorers, and then, the "last stop before Mexico."

Fulton is a town of history. The first homes were established there in 1819 by John Anderson and William and Matthew Mess, but it was not until 1840 that lots were laid out to form a recognizable town. This was done by Edward Cross, Grandison D. Royston, David T. Witter, and Roswell Beebe.

Fulton became a river town. Like other river towns, stories of its past usually include stories of its boats. One of the last steamers to plow the muddy waters of Red River in and out of the old port of Fulton was the Waukesha, owned by the late W. H. McWhorter of Fulton. He was a native of Wisconsin and named his boat for a city in his home state.

The steamer at that time was still engaged in the cotton-carrying trade, although the railroad had come through 21 years before, in 1873. On board the ship the planters and merchants gathered for some bang-up poker parties in their leisure moments and the owner was a pretty good player.

Well, in one of those games the Waukesha herself was a table stake. And W. H. McWhorter was pitted against his good friend, the late Henry Cox. Before that session was over, Cox had won a plantation, $2,200 in cash, and the good ship Waukesha.

The plantation and the cash hurt, but it seems that the adding of the steamboat to the table stake may have been just an afterthought, for steamboats were becoming unprofitable. It eventually met a fate not unusual for Red River steamboats—she hit a snag and sank.

With only two exceptions, there were no more commercial craft on the Red after the Waukesha. The last large vessels of any description to come up Red River as far as Fulton were U.S. snagsboats, which, about the time of World War I, worked the river from the railroad bridge upstream but they too have long since quit.

McWhorter, owner of the Waukesha, was known all over this section of Arkansas—a truly great merchant. The late Mac Anderson, of Little Rock brother of Roy Anderson of Hope, was McWhorter's namesake. So was the late Mac (Max) Cox of Fulton and Hope, a son of the same Henry Cox that once won the Waukesha from its owner.

And here is proof that losing the Waukesha neither "broke" McWhorter nor changed his feeling toward his friend Cox. When the great Fulton merchant died, he left a legacy of $1,000 to each of three boys he had known: his two namesakes, Mac Anderson and Mac Cox, and Conway Carrigan.

The $70,000 contract is for construction of the plant building, which will house manufacturing and office operations. Plans for the general contract, which will include parking areas, foundations, installation of air conditioning and power generators are being prepared.

Relocating of the plant from Anderson Ind., was announced last summer. It will employ 100 with an annual payroll of $600,000. The Reynolds company is a division of Arkla Industries Inc., a subsidiary of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co.

Still Wants to Control G&F

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Rep. Claude F. Collier of Greene County said Thursday the state Game and Fish Commission has stopped cutting timber in the Black River area of Green, Clay and Randolph Counties.

But the move will not cause him to withdraw a bill giving the legislature control of the agency, he said.

Collier said he has been trying for some time to get the commission to halt the timber cutting. He said the agency had decided to hold a public hearing in the area before cutting is resumed.

Collier's measure, HJR 8, filed Jan. 18, would repeal Amendment 35, which makes the Commission an independent agency.

Mucho, a Dog of Age of Electronics

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Mucho is a dog of the electronic age. He can take his commands (and obey them) from a walkie-talkie on his harness.

It was obvious today that Mucho, with the antenna sticking up from his side, loved this electronic business.

He knows he's pleasing—he knows it," Pvt. Eugene Yaoukum of the Alexandria Police Department said.

Yaoukum put Mucho through his places, standing about 40 feet away, and giving the commands into a walkie-talkie in his hand. The receiving set and antenna were attached to the harness of the big black and tan German shepherd.

Down," Yaoukum said into the walkie-talkie. Mucho's ears pricked up, and down the dog went. The dog came, sat and bounded away, all at commands heard on his radio, and he performed with gusto.

It started last summer. Mucho, almost 4, had been in the Police K-9 Corps a little over two years. He rode often on the back seat of a patrol car with Yaoukum, his master, and Sgt. Cecil Kester.

The two policemen noticed that when their car, K-9-1, was called on the police radio, Mucho got all excited, but didn't pay any attention when he heard the noise of other cars being called.

The policemen thought perhaps Mucho noticed when they leaned over to pick up the receiver when their car was called. They arranged with the dispatcher to call them, and they just sat there without noticing.

But in the back seat, Mucho jumped when he heard K-9-1, stood up and jumped up and down, raring to go—his car had been called.

Yaoukum then started working with Mucho and a walkie-talkie in his spare time.

AP&L Makes Major Rate Reduction

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Power & Light Co.'s first major rate reduction since 1944 is expected to mean a total yearly decrease of $2.5 million, AP&L President Reeves Ritchie said today.

Ritchie told some 400 members of the company's management group the recently announced reduction was the company's ninth since 1930.

The management men were in Little Rock for the power company's 2-day golden jubilee conference, which ended today at noon.

Gerald L. Andrus of New Orleans, president of Middle South Utilities, Inc., told the group that in the past 10 years, electric operating revenues of Middle South companies increased from $95 million to nearly $220 million.

AP&L is a member of the Middle South system, which also has member companies in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Andrus said the system's peak load during the past 10 years had increased from 1,205,000 kilowatts to 2,820,000 kilowatts.

Safety Award to Caddo Gap Man

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Power & Light Co. gave its highest safety award Thursday to Jimmie Gerald West, 28, of Caddo Gap for saving the life of a fellow lineman. The firm said West and Carl Griggs were working atop a pole near Conway when Griggs came in touch with a live wire. West applied artificial respiration by working around the pole to where Griggs lay unconscious, the citation said, and using his shoulder against Griggs' abdomen. Griggs has returned to work.

Cuba May Be Second Power In Hemisphere

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Preparedness subcommittee has set out in a maze of claims to gauge for itself the perils of Soviet military power in Cuba, and to see if it is swiftly increasing.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the subcommittee chairman, ordered the investigation Friday, saying: Reports which have come to me indicate that the continued presence and buildup of military might in Cuba is rapidly converting Castro's forces into the second most powerful military power in the hemisphere.

Since these forces were controlled by the hostile rulers of Communist Russia it is imperative that we examine carefully the threat which it poses to our security and the state of our own military preparedness to meet and counter this threat."

Sources said military and intelligence officials would be among the witnesses for the hearings which they expect to begin in two weeks behind closed doors.

Stennis ordered the investigation hours after hearing Secretary of State Dean Rusk and John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, brief the Senate's Latin American Affairs subcommittee in a closed session.

Stennis himself reserved comment on what Rusk and McCone had said. Nor did he indicate their testimony was the reason for his subcommittee's investigation.

Informants said the Preparedness group will explore various reports on the extent of Soviet strength in Cuba—including whether it has the equivalent of two divisions there and whether any nuclear arms are among the weapons.

Republican national Chairman William E. Miller has charged the Russians now have in Cuba enough nuclear warheads to blow the roof off the Kennedy mansion in Palm Beach."

Wide Open Golf Meet at Frisco

By P. D. ELDRED
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A traffic jam of 23 par busting pros led by Pennsylvania Art Wall and Texas youngster Jack Cupit had turned the $50,000 San Francisco open into a wide open affair over Harding Park's bumpy greens as they went into the second round today.

Wall, 39, eagled his final hole to come in with a big smile as he and Cupit, 24, from Longview in the East Texas oil fields, took advantage of bright, sunny weather to shoot pace setting 67s, four under par.

Cupit touched up his first round card with four birdies.
Only one stroke back of the leaders at 69 were Charlie Siforo, Phil Rodgers, Bobby Nichols, Dick Mayer and a young University of Texas graduate, Terry Dill.

Grouped at 69 for the first of four rounds in this 72-hole tourney were Bud Holscher, Wes Ellis, Jr., George Knudson, Gardner Dickinson, Jr., Miller Barber, Buster Cupit (brother of Jack), last week's Crosby winner Billy Casper and Jack Bisseger.

U.S. Open titlist Jack Nicklaus came up with a painful hip which impeded his hitting. He took a 78.
South African Gary Player flew into San Francisco at 3 a.m. Thursday, only hours before teeing off, and shot a so-so 74. He said he was just plain travel weary.

Last year's winner, Gene Littler, toured Harding in a one under 70.

Hindus Bented for Rioting

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Fourteen upper caste Hindus have been sentenced to hang and 21 others jailed for life for rioting against untouchables in a village near Indore City.

The riot occurred last Sept. 4 when the untouchables—members of the lowest Hindu caste—tried to exercise their legal right to worship at a temple from which religious tradition had barred them for centuries. Four untouchables were killed and 18 others seriously injured.

Falcon Mine Is Now in Operation

By RUTH M. MALONE

This is the mining end of it when we are producing 500 tons of iron a day.

Mining Superintendent A. G. Fuller made this remark recently at Arkansas' only commercial iron ore mining operation near Falcon, Nevada county, just 12 miles northeast of Stamps.

Since geologists estimate the area contains 5 million tons of ore it looks as if southwest Arkansas has an iron ore field that may mean a new kind of pay dirt for the state . . . even a steel mill in time, perhaps.

It is estimated there is enough iron ore in the area for 35 to 30 years of normal operation.

Though Arthur and Herbert Russell, who started the mining operation in the three-county area, are known primarily as oilmen, they believe they have found in the iron clods something as profitable as black gold.

With these two brothers in Southwest Enterprises Inc. are W. E. Stock, Texas oilman and W. C. Blewster, well-known banker of Magnolia. Though the company has been in actual operation less than a year, Arthur Russell said the backers have been working on the project for three years.

"We'd known about the deposit, but what we didn't know was the quality of quantity", Russell explained.

They core drilled an area six miles long and 1½ miles wide and have come up with a conservative five million tons deposit he said. The analysis showed an average 58 per cent iron in the ore and anything above 50 per cent is said to be very good.

Russell told of their first knowledge of the ore. We are in the oil business and had drilled wells in the area. When we'd drill we would often run into iron ore." Later they decided it was quite a sizeable area and were convinced it was of a high grade.

Some of the operation is on leased land and some is on land owned by the corporation. There are several thousand acres in the mining area.

It is a different kind of industry to visit and most interesting, from the time one sees the huge shovels dip the big balls of iron ore from the bottom of the open pit until later when dump trucks haul away the ore and fines to railroad cars.

The mined ore is considerably heavier than concrete it was told. It is usually found about ten inches to twelve feet underground in nodules, which are round balls weighing from one pound to two thousand pounds. It is found in layers about 18 inches to two feet thick and often one layer will be around 10 feet below ground and the next one about 14 feet down.

The overburden—the layer of earth above the ore is two to four feet deep and the waste that has been stripped away is piled up on each side of the operation like a levee.

They haul approximately 100 loads about 500 tons a day.

On all of the leased land the ground is leveled back for timber growing and grazing so the land is left usable for other purposes after the iron ore has been taken out.

Fuller showed me one five-acre tract which they are now mining and he said it will last until spring. As each new acreage is leased it is tested and logged so the mining operations know the depth of the ore. He showed me one recently evacuated area which had an 18 inch layer of iron ore and an overburden of eight feet.

Some of the ore I saw had a white streak and I was told this is called siderite, but for the most part the ore is dark brown in color. It looks as if it has been under extreme heat at some time in the past.

It takes as much stripping as it does digging to get the stuff uncovered", Fuller remarked.

The investment in heavy equipment is quite noticeable as there are cranes of various sizes, loading trucks, and other heavy pieces besides a stripping rig valued at $90,000.

After watching the mining operation for some time I was anxious to see what was being done with the big balls I'd seen. We passed huge pools of water as we drove back and I was told these are the settling ponds where all of the dirt and impurities go, after the ore is washed at the plant.

The same water is used over an d over as the water circulates during the operation.

As we drove along I noticed trucks with huge water sprinklers. These are used to help protect the eyes of the operators and also to protect equipment from the dirt and dust, too.

They use their own diesel-driven generating plant as much elec-

Rusk First Witness in Cuba Probe

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuba's military might—and whether it is on the rise—is the subject of a Senate investigation beginning today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk as the first witness.

Rusk is expected to back President Kennedy's contention that there has been no new military buildup on the Caribbean island.

But despite this assertion by the President at his news conference Thursday, several Republican senators remain skeptical. And despite his renewed assumption of responsibility for failure of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion, there is no slowing of a Republican drive for an independent investigation of the fiasco.

Kennedy said the best information we have from continued U.S. air surveillance and other intelligence is that one ship arrived in Cuba since the October crisis which may have arms on it, possibly military cargo.

But there has not been a military buildup in that sense of the equipment coming in from outside of Cuba," he said. There is no evidence that this ship carried any offensive weapons.

Kennedy's appraisal of the state of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's arsenal contradicts reports Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and others say they have received. Their claim is that Castro has been getting additional weapons and is now militarily much stronger than he was six months ago.

These reports prompted Chairman Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to call Rusk and Central Intelligence Agency representatives before his Latin-American affairs subcommittee for closed-door testimony.

In his session with newsmen, Kennedy dealt also with the nagging question of whether air support had been planned for the exile invaders.

Obviously," he said, if you are going to have United States cover, you might as well have a complete United States commitment, which would have meant a full-fledged invasion." He stressed that at no time did the United States plan to use its own planes to fly missions over the invasion beach.

What was talked about, Kennedy continued, was an air strike by outmoded B26 bombers flown by pilots not based in the United States. This was delayed from morning until afternoon, when the invaders already had gone ashore.

As I said from the beginning," the President declared at another point, the operation was a failure and the responsibility rests with the White House.

Electric power is necessary for the operation.

Big dump trucks were unloading at the plant as we came close. The ore passed through shakers, screens, washers and into the crusher. This ore is washed four times before it is sized. Dirty water was going into a ditch on one side and down into the pond below. As the ore went through a series of screens and was here I was told to watch for the size of the final product. One man stood near as the ore passed the first operation and he picked out large clods of dirt that had managed to pass by. Later in the operation another man hand graded for poor grade ore, gravel, and sandstone before it went through the final screen into two huge stockpiles. One stockpile was made of four-inch ore and the other was fines" (½ inch or smaller).

The large ore is hauled to railroad cars in Stamps and shipped to steel mills in Birmingham, Ala. while cement plants use the small ore or fines."

Representatives from several mining and steel mill enterprises have visited this area and have been very much impressed with the operation which promises to be a bright spot in Southwest Arkansas' future.

LITTLEST RETIREE—Like most little boys, George Linnell, of Ely, Nev., liked to go to the airport and watch the big planes land. But he became such a familiar visitor that ground crew personnel made him an "official" signalman. With miniature signal paddles made by his father, George got to expert that he was actually allowed to guide planes to their parking places. Photo, left, was taken in 1957 when George was 6 years old and was being briefed on the instruments in an airplane's cockpit. Now 11, signalman George "retired" recently because of the press of other activities. United Airlines held a retirement party for him, right, complete with cake and a genuine five-year service pin.

Nurse Caught in War Between Sisters

By HELEN WORDEN ERKSINE

Dear Helen: I have just been subjected to the most embarrassing experience. Though married and having raised a family, I returned from choice to my old profession of nursing. It's far better than sitting home and twiddling my thumbs and, what is more important, I love my work except on occasions like the one I am about to describe.

Several months ago I was called to nurse an elderly lady who was convalescing from an operation. Her older sister very graciously turned over the guest room for this purpose. The case lasted six weeks and during that time I had occasion to help the elder sister during a small siege of illness. In appreciation she gave me a going away check of $25 saying to mention the gift to no one.

Subsequently the younger sister, now fully recovered, moved permanently into the older sister's house, taking over the running of home, servants and, eventually, the bank account. A few days ago I received a note from this younger sister asking me to call as she wished to discuss a certain check with me. I was dumbfounded but went.

The younger sister showed me the $25 cancelled check, demanding to know what it was for. Not wishing to cause the older sister any trouble I said it was for work and not an outright gift. Thereupon the younger sister brought forth all the checks she had paid me and began shouting at the top of her voice I had no right to that $25.

Dismayed by all the hubbub, the older sister blurted out that it was a gift from her to me. At this the other jumped up from her chair, screaming, You mean to say you gave her $25 for nothing?"

I have never been so hurt or embarrassed in my life and practically crawled out of the house. I was so ashamed. As I left I could hear the two in the throes of a sickening family quarrel; full of recriminations about who was entitled to what in the family estate. Apparently the elder sister had inherited the major share of the fortune and the younger was trying to gain control. It was dreadful. What should I do—send back or keep the money?—Disturbed

Dear Disturbed: Keep the $25. The older sister had a conscience. She knew that you helped her through an illness in addition to caring for the one you'd been engaged to look after. If the latter tries to bully you again, tell the physician who was in charge of the case.

Apparently she is fighting to gain control of the family fortune by proving the incompetency of the other in managing money. People as petty-natured as she should be dealt with firmly.

Dear Helen: You wrote about a woman with an impossible husband and advised her to keep on trying to help him believe in himself.

Well, my Dad is this way, full of prejudices. He refuses to admit that we're all born free and equal. He'll be kind one time, take us all out to dinner, then throw it in our face next day. He hates children. I'm 15 and still not acceptable in his eyes. He says he now likes my brother but fights him all the time.

Our whole family sighs with relief when he leaves the house. How can I get away from him permanently? When I try to talk to Mom she says, He's your father. To me he is a stranger. Should I see a psychiatrist or a judge?—Confused Teen-ager

Dear Confused: You will be free when you come of age, which in your state is 18. Until then you cannot act without the consent of both parents. In other words, if you ran away, the police would return you to your father and mother. They alone are responsible for your welfare.

You must take this into consideration before completely condemning your father. He has footed the bills for you these 15 years—clothes, schooling, medical care, entertainment, you owe to him.

If he is irritable it's probably because he's worried. Instead of seeing a psychiatrist or judge about him, try with the help of your mother, to get at the root of his troubles. Understand instead of criticizing him. Love, instead of hating him. For after all, as your mother says, He is your father!"

Dear Helen: What's wrong with our women today? Don't they appreciate a good man when they meet one? The bachelor who sounded like the answer to a maiden's prayer shouldn't go begging. Why any sane-minded woman in her forties would throw away the chance to marry this kind, understanding and considerate man is beyond me.

My husband and I have been married 16 years. We were madly in love at first, then he started drinking. Need I say more? No one but other women who have been married to alcoholics know the torture, the fear, the sleepless nights, the humiliation and the tension involved.

We've been to Alcoholics Anonymous, doctors and counselors (only through my pressuring).

My husband remains defiant and bitter. He gravitates to bars, drinking buddies and useless living. I've tried divorce twice but he wouldn't leave and I couldn't—with five children. I am their only security.

I can't bear the thought of leaving them to go out to work. We are very close. Besides, what could I do? I miss not having a home of our own to decorate, or a yard to make pretty. My husband doesn't want another house. He hates even paying rent. We are behind in ours now, perhaps that's what prompted me to write.

After reading about that nice bachelor, it made me feel good to know there are at least a few decent men left. My father and mother were so loving and kind. I feel that's the way marriage should be. Mine isn't. Just lowering off steam!—Despairing Wife

Dear Despairing: The very act of blowing off steam" in writing me has probably helped you. The sooner you realize that your husband is the only one who can help himself, then get on with your own life, the better. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, Turn Your Spare Time into Cash."

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Protests Against Legislature

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—The El Dorado City Council protested Thursday what it called the Arkansas legislature's attempt to run city government.

The council approved a resolution opposing two bills now before the legislature, giving firemen minimum salaries of $300 per month and fixing the work week at 56 hours.

Both proposals are sponsored by the Arkansas Fire Fighters Association.

Mayor Roy H. Goady said all state officials from Union County would get copies of the resolution in the mail.

He added that in the event the bills were passed, it would possibly mean that one sub-station in El Dorado would be forced to close. He said this would be due to the salary and manpower problem with which the city would be faced.

He estimated an additional $32,000 in salaries would be required if the bills were approved.

No Buildup in Cuba Now, Says Kennedy

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy says evidence gathered through daily aerial scrutiny of Cuba fails to support reports of a massive new Soviet military buildup there.

Kennedy told his news conference Thursday that the 16,000 to 17,000 Soviets still on the island are exercising, building some barracks.

And he said he knows of the arrival since the October crisis of only one Soviet ship that might have carried arms or other military cargo.

There is no evidence that this ship carried any offensive weapons," he said.

In a session laced with foreign policy talk, Kennedy focused on the need for Western unity. He said it was not in the interest of the alliance for France to base its desire for an independent nuclear force on the grounds that the United States would fail to defend Europe by whatever means are necessary.

As for French President Charles de Gaulle, Kennedy said, I would hope that our confidence in him would be matched by his confidence in us."

The prime domestic topic of Kennedy's news conference was his call for a three-year tax cut of $13.6 billion to be partly offset by $3.4 billion of revenue-raising changes in special tax benefits.

Kennedy strongly implied he wants a first-step rate cut of $3.2 billion to go into effect this year—even if Congress puts aside proposed benefit revisions until a later date.

We will just have to wait and see whether both can be done this year," he said. In any case, we should be able to make progress, come what may, on the first step of the three-stage reduction."

Even as he expounded policy that could affect the nation's future tax history, Kennedy tried to clarify a bit of past history: The cloudy story of air cover" for the U.S.-backed Cuban invasion of April 1961.

Before the conference ended Kennedy gave De Gaulle a direct and dry rebuke by expressing the hope the Frenchman would have as much confidence in the United States as this country has in France.

Meanwhile, other members of the Common Market, particularly Belgium, are getting angry at De Gaulle for keeping Britain out. This crack in the Western alliance is getting increasingly unpleasant.

De Gaulle, who hadn't had a news conference since last May, decided to hold one Jan. 14, just a few hours before Kennedy, with the world waiting to hear what he said, was to deliver his State of the Union message to Congress.

De Gaulle's timing was hardly a coincidence. The questions and the answers were hardly spontaneous. Newsmen at De Gaulle conferences have to submit their questions in writing before hand and his aides plant some of the questions.

What he said undercut what Kennedy said later. Kennedy talked glowingly of Europe moving toward unity in all directions. De Gaulle contradicted this almost brutally.

He made a direct assault on Kennedy's idea of an Atlantic partnership and an enlarged Common Market behind the protective shield of a joint, mostly American, nuclear defense.

Then, while proclaiming his intention of building a strictly French atomic arsenal, he slammed the door on letting Britain into the Common Market.

He said contemptuously that France's goal for the market was something properly European"—meaning Britain was an outsider—and not some huge Atlantic community under American leadership and domination."

The Kennedy administration, murmuring a sort of mild unhappiness, kept its anger pretty much out of sight until this week when, on two successive days, Kennedy cut loose.

Jean Monnet, a Frenchman and architect of the Common Market, was honored two nights ago at a dinner in New York.

Kennedy in a letter and George Ball, undersecretary of state, in a speech took the occasion to attack De Gaulle while appearing only to honor Monnet.

What they really said, without naming De Gaulle, was that he had his head in a bush, dreaming of the past. Monnet, whose life is the Common Market, was less oblique. He tore into his countryman, De Gaulle, directly.

Thursday at his news conference Kennedy opened up a little more.

De Gaulle had questioned American willingness to defend Europe in all circumstances. That was why, he said, France must have its own atomic power. Kennedy, still not naming De Gaulle, said he was inaccurate and was injuring the alliance.

He took this line: If one could reason the United States would not defend Europe, then one could assume France would not stand beside her fellow-Europeans, and, from there, one could argue every country must have its own atomic

This was prompted by challenges thrown at a weekend statement by the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, than no U. S. air cover ever was contemplated. This statement seemingly contradicted long-standing reports that the President canceled planned air cover.

Kennedy attributed the confusion to loose use of the phrase "air cover." He said his brother's statement was correct because the United States at no time planned to use its own planes to fly missions over the invasion beach.

But he said there was talk about an air strike by Cuban refugee pilots flying from bases outside the United States and that this did not work out." He described this as one of the failures" of the invasion.

Other major topics touched on by Kennedy included:

Nuclear Tests—Khrushchev's recent acceptance of the principle of on-site inspection is very important" and the possible forerunner of a breakthrough in nuclear test ban negotiations.

Meredith—If James Meredith withdraws from the University of Mississippi, that is a loss not only to Mr. Meredith, but I think the university." Although curtailment of violence and protection of the Negro student cost the federal government $4 million, Kennedy said it would have been far more expensive" had the Negro been physically attacked or denied admission by force.

Newspaper Strikes—Kennedy wishes for an early end to newspaper strikes in Cleveland and New York. In the case of the New York walkout, he hopes both sides will reach the compromise which ultimately they are going to reach anyway."

They're Like That

man in a luncheonette was serving hot chocolate, tea and coffee to customers chilled by freezing temperatures Thursday night.

A patron bundled in a heavy jacket and wearing a fur cap walked up to the counter and said, I know you'll think I'm nuts, but please give me a strawberry ice cream cone to go. I guess my wife must be pregnant."

Counterman Tommy Thunelius prepared the cone, handed it to the customer and suggested, You better rush home with it before it melts."

Our Symbol

One of our most treasured relics is the Liberty Bell. It is so-called because it was rung on July 8, 1776 to summons the citizenry for the terse announcement that the Declaration of Independence had been adopted. Today, it remains the greatest symbol of a nation free from tyranny in government and intolerance in religion

... that nation is America.

But one fact often overlooked is that when the historic bell was originally cast its makers turned to the Bible, to Leviticus, for the words inscribed around its contour: "Proclaim Liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." What a beginning! What a heritage! What a privilege to be a son or daughter of Freedom's Land. What a blessing to be an American.

How great is our Symbol!!!

So They May See == St. John 14:1-15 == So They May Hear

LET NOT YOUR HEART be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

2. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.

3. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.

4. And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5. Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?

6. Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.

7. If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8. Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

JESUS SAITH UNTO HIM, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

10. Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

11. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.

12. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

13. And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

14. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15. If ye love me, keep my commandments.
